ATHENAEUM

The integrated personality emerges. .

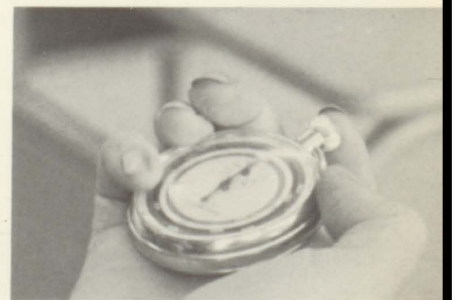

from a series of meaningful,
challenging, and assimilated experiences.

This concept evolves from intellectual growth, personal relationships, and involvement in school and community life.

A vital dimension of such a personality is soul enrichment . . .

the ability to “listen to the warm”,
respond with sensitivity,
and implement with sensibility.

These are the fragments which comprise the whole . . .
the "images"
that formulate the "picture".

They constitute the essence of our maturity . . .
the emerging integrated personality.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE TO THE SENIORS

Education is an eye-opener. If it serves any purpose, it serves to sharpen one's view of life's episodes, and to bring into more meaningful perspective the daily events of our time. The talented artist can see line, color, light, and impression that escape those less able and less trained. So, too, the well-educated man can see more in the panorama of life than his less fortunate neighbor. The poorly educated man sees only fragments of those human scenes he experiences. All too frequently, he misses that which is subtle, is insensitive to nuance, and blind to that which is foreign. So much of life just passes him by. Your high school education has improved your vision but it has not developed its full potential. There are always flaws and blurs and this is why your education does not end here. Rather it is a life-long process. The only corrective prescription for mental myopia is a life devoted to learning more each passing day.

Goal Guides

Guidance services, coordinated by staff members with specialized preparation, are an integral part of the educational program at Barringer High School. Carefully designed to consider the individual, these services assist the student in knowing himself as an individual and as a member of society; in indentifying his strengths, limitations, and problems; and in relating this information realistically to his needs and potentialities. The counselors serve, also, as liaison between school and the home, school and college, and between school and industry.

Guidance counseling is, therefore, a comprehensive and continuing process which helps each student choose and succeed in areas that will enable him to attain his personal, academic, and career goals.

Proficiency in the effective use of written and spoken language and the meaningful interpretation of literature are the basic objectives of the English Department. English I establishes the foundation for the other three years with emphasis on the functional use of language, writing skills, and an introduction to the forms of literature; English II continues the comprehensive study of literary types and trends; English III surveys American literature particularly; English IV explores the fields of English and World Literature. The English program is geared to A, B, and Honors levels, each with materials appropriate to the students' various abilities and interests.

Supplementing the regular course of study, electives are offered in Journalism, Creative Writing, Speech, Dramatics, and Free Reading.

The Educational Developmental Laboratory for reading and listening improvement for students of all levels of ability is conducted by the Department and sponsored by Title I which also subsidizes field trips arranged by the English teachers.

In order to meet the needs of a large number of foreign-born students, a language laboratory was instituted at Barringer several years ago. It functions as a "home away from home" as well as a means of introducing English as a second language.

In addition to the traditional academic disciplines, a significant supply of recently developed materials for urban schools is available for classroom use.

Fraction Finders

The wide range of courses offered by the Mathematics Department meets the needs of the terminal as well as the college-bound student. General Math I and II, General Math IR, and Senior Math, emphasize practical application. Algebra I and II, Geometry A and B, Advanced Algebra-Trigonometry provide students with the opportunity to develop skill and ability in postulational reasoning, graphic representations of statistical data and mathematical expressions, inferential statistics and scientific thinking. The exceptional students are selected to participate in the MAP, Mathematics for Advanced Placement, program. The sequence is followed in the sophomore through the senior year, culminating in MAP V, differential and integral calculus. Students in MAP II-IV, study analytic and solid geometry, as well as advanced algebra.

In an attempt to up-grade standards, the Barringer High School Mathematics Department has devised a Minimum Essentials Test which all juniors throughout the city are required to pass before they can qualify as candidates for graduation.

Science is an attitude, a point of view, a way of approaching and solving problems, a means by which man attempts to satisfy the craving to understand his world. It can be properly classed as one of the liberal arts, perhaps, even one of the humanities. Its methods have been called upon in all areas of man's intellectual endeavors and its effects are of increasing import in almost all fields. It has structure, a form and beauty, and can be as exciting and as exhilarating as a painting, a poem or a musical composition.

In our modern world we are, perhaps, more aware of the fruit of science-technology, and are sometimes prone to equate these two. The comforts of modern life are certainly pleasant, but the excitement is in the science that made these comforts possible.

Since science is something one does, all of the courses are structured around the laboratory work, for it is only in the laboratory that truth can be demonstrated.

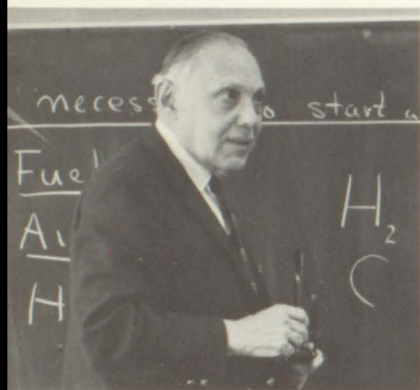

The major course offerings are Physical Science in the ninth grade, Biology in the tenth grade, Electricity, Integrated Science I, and Physics in the eleventh grade, and Electronics, Integrated Science II, Chemistry, and Earth Science in the twelfth grade. Within all of the major course offerings there is provision to adapt to the needs, interests, and sophistication of the students with certain aspects designed to provide training and education in technology.

Barrier Breakers

The Foreign Language Department, sensitive to the language needs of a diverse student population, offers a variety of courses. Students may pursue the study of French, Italian, and Spanish for four years, and Latin for three years. An Independent Study approach allows the student to progress at his own rate. The Department maintains a lending library of practice records which parallel practice books. The duplicating of tapes for students who have recorders is a service designed to aid the student at home. A course specifically geared to the Spanish-speaking students encourages awareness of their native language, identity, and culture. The Language Laboratory reinforces classroom learning experiences. The audio-lingual approach stresses the functional use of language.

"Spanish Night" initiated by the Foreign Language Department and sponsored by the school provides communication with the Spanish parents who desire to be a part of school and community activities, but because of a language barrier were unable to do so in the past.

Generation "Gappers"

Man at his best and at his worst — this two-fold concept is history. From what has Mankind evolved? What has Man achieved in his evolution through the centuries? Is Mankind innately evil or good? Why is Youth in rebellion? Are capitalism and democracy obsolete? What are the dynamic forces buffeting Mankind in the last half of the twentieth century?

These are some of the vital issues that our social studies classes consider each day. Students discover the truths of our civilization . . . some inspiring . . . some glorious . . . some shameful. The students learn to think, to evaluate, to determine, to interpret, and to apply knowledge to the solution of human problems.

There is no denying that Man has the scientific and technological knowledge to destroy himself and the planet, but will he have the courage, wisdom, and the insight to realize a world free of suffering, poverty, and ignorance.

American History, World History, Civics, Modern European History, Afro-American Studies, World Cultures, International Relations, and Economics — all attempt to provide answers gleaned from the human experience .

The Business Education Department reflects the rapid and technological advances of a commercial and industrial society. The traditional basic courses of typewriting, stenography, and bookkeeping continue to prepare a great number of students for business careers. General business, economic geography, consumer problems, and business law, all basic business background courses, provide vocational training and "know how" in the economics of family living. Specialized business training is available in such courses as record keeping, bookkeeping, business machines, clerical procedures, office practice, secretarial practice, and data processing.

While the department prepares students to succeed and advance in business, the outstanding students are encouraged to go to college to pursue professional careers in accounting, computer programming, and the teaching of business education. Students already in the college preparatory pattern are urged to take certain business education courses along with their usual academic programs. Stenography is a big help in taking college lecture notes. Typewriting is now a "must" for all term papers. Bookkeeping can assist everyone with recording personal finances, keeping a budget, filing income tax returns, and the like.

Business students are very frequently encouraged, by precept and example, to be of service to the school and to the community. Our students type, cut masters and stencils, operate the duplicating and mimeograph machines, collate pages of a booklet, keypunch cards — all for other departments of our school as well as for the Parent Teachers Association and other agencies.

Talent Scouts

Art is not an activity confined only to the classroom. Art challenges the creativity of students and strives for implementation of the artistic to the realities of living.

The program of the Art Department is planned to encourage awareness of esthetic values; to explore individual interests and talents; to develop sensitive discrimination in the use of art media.

Art Foundations, Art Survey, General, and Studio Art comprise the course offerings.

Students are involved, also, in a variety of non-classroom experiences which accent the practical application of art instruction. These experiences include arranging showcase exhibits, designing posters, creating entries for competition, and visiting museums featuring primitive and modern art.

The Music Department curriculum contributes to the educational needs of students through general courses such as Music Foundations, and General Music, and specialized courses and activities such as Music Workshop, Instrumental Lessons, Orchestra, Blue Jackets, Band, Brass Ensemble, Mixed Chorus, and Chorus X. The "top-notch" performances evidenced in the winter and spring concert and the annual musical production are the culmination of hard work and training.

The Department program is designed to develop knowledge, appreciation, and skills commensurate with the students' interests and talents. An effort is made to discover and train students having exceptional aptitudes and abilities.

Style Setters And Menu Makers

The Home Economics Department offers courses and activities designed to meet the home and family-life needs of all students, and the vocational needs of some students. The program provides practical learning experiences utilizing a variety of goods, services, and equipment.

The Department is involved with developing the student's responsibility in home and in family and community relationships.

In addition to the homemaking skills, emphasis is placed on the desirable habits and attitudes beneficial to gracious living.

Another feature of the Department is the National Betty Crocker Competition, conducted annually, which awards prizes and scholarships to the contestants.

The Industrial Arts curriculum offers orientation to an industrial environment, development of occupational skills, and the opportunity to explore career aptitudes.

The Department, one of the best equipped in the state, offers Graphic Arts, which trains students in the various techniques of etching, engraving, photography, type-setting, and designing; Metal and Machine Shop, which teach welding and other useful industrial practices; Wood-Working designed to develop skill in working with a variety of textures and materials.

Programs in mechanical drawing, surveying, and architectural design are among the course offerings.

A service of the Department is the printing of posters, programs, tickets, and tests for school and community activities.

Physical fitness, good sportsmanship, successful teamwork, and recreational interests are the important aspects of the Physical Education Department. As a respite from the regular academic classes, the gym sessions give the students an opportunity to develop the skills required for volleyball, basketball, and other seasonal sports. Apparatus techniques and exercise routines are designed to maintain strong bodies, improve coordination, and encourage desirable social attitudes. To supplement the physical activities, the Department conducts, also, a variety of Health Education courses. Personal Health, Child Care, Family Living, and the ever-popular Driver Education classes — all serve to prepare the student for a stable and rewarding family and community life.

Teacher of the Month

by Karen Hurley

Rose Marie Serra is that little lady running around in our math department doing quite a good job at performing the impossible task of teaching math to the "Barringer Student".

Born right here in Newark, Miss Serra returned to teach here after graduation from St. Elizabeth's College in Morristown and a few years at the old high school where she was valedictorian some time ago, St. Michael's. She has been with the faculty here for six years come this September, and still hasn't become bored helping those of us who need help in math and some of the other problems with which we are sometimes faced.

She is truly a remarkable person, for she is blessed with the two most essential traits of a good teacher, the ability to communicate and a natural interest in her subject matter and her students. We, speaking for those of us who know her and to those who should get to know her, believe her to be the most typical example of an outstanding teacher.

A WORD FROM OUR PRESIDENT

As we approach the end of our senior year, it is inevitable that we recall certain memories and experiences which contributed to the evolution of the senior from the freshman who stumbled through block-long corridors searching for the one little corner that was his homeroom. These years meant more than just academic development; they were years of preparation for meeting the demands of an impersonal society. During this senior year we have worked particularly hard to re-kindle school spirit, and to establish meaningful dialogue between the student body and the administration.

As President of the Class of 1969, I wish to thank all those of you who have worked to make this year a successful and rewarding one. I wish to express my gratitude especially to the Associate-president whose help was invaluable, and to the other officers whose support was much appreciated.

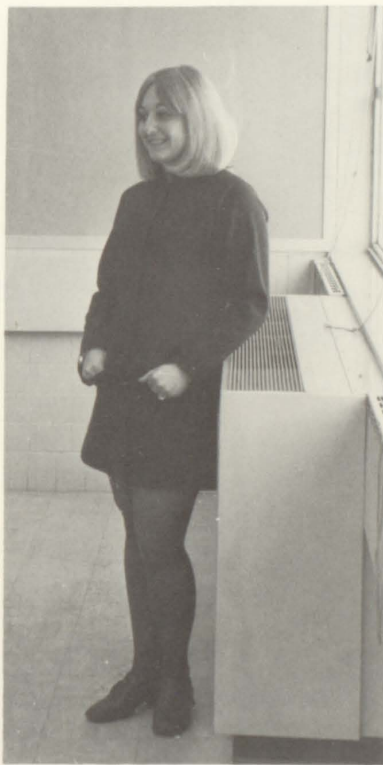

And now, with my farewell, may I add Congratulations and Good Luck!

VALEDICTORIAN'S MESSAGE

"Impaled upon my wall,
my eyes can dimly see
The pattern of my life, and the puzzle that is me."

Alice Giordano

We, the young people of today, are striving more than ever to understand and appreciate life and our fellow man.

We have, up to now, thought of life as a mere game. But the reality is upon us; this is the end of the beginning. All that has gone before was simply a preparation for what is to come. Life's wide gates of opportunity are beckoning, and we must learn to "make it" rather than "fake it", or be engulfed by an anachronistic society. We must make serious decisions, chart new courses, and establish new goals which will determine, ultimately, our way of living and our contributions to society.

However, in order for our convictions to be applicable, we must probe and understand ourselves. By means of inquiry, understanding, and communication, we may comprehend and accept our fellow man, our environment, and hence, life itself.

It must be the direction of every man to search for life's formula, living, fulfilling, and applying the formula with utmost purpose.

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

Maturing is probably one of the most arduous processes facing a boy or girl today. Physical maturity, in most cases, occurs naturally. Intellectual and social maturity, on the other hand, require more time and experience.

Understanding, patience, tact, some degree of knowledge and, above all, open-mindedness, are among the most important qualities needed to effect this maturity and to produce a well-rounded personality.

The editorship of the Yearbook often demands the application of these qualities; sometimes I was unable to supply them. However, the realization of the need and cultivation of these traits became clear. Without these qualities, success is limited. Each of these characteristics is analogous to a section of a bridge, each alone is useless; together they are employable. I have finally learned the significance of co-ordinating these traits in order to achieve an integrated personality — the bridge that can transport us from high school to adult life, from mediocre performance to remarkable success, and from incomplete development to full maturity.
